CryptoLicensing For.Net is a software solution that can help you add licensing options to your Visual Basic.Net software, such as WPF applications, Windows services, ASP.Net web sites and others. It can generate secure cryptographic licenses that offer protection to your software, as well as the websites that may be hosting them. A simple interface for the common user The user interface is clean and all its functions are neatly displayed in the main window. You can create licenses for full versions of your software, evaluation or trial versions, online or manual activation, network floating licenses, on-demand, subscriptions and hardware-locked. It is possible to create evaluation licenses by configuring the dedicated parameters, such as the absolute date when the license expires and maximum usage days, unique usage days, executions, run-time and cumulative run-time. Create and edit your own licensing rules You can also make the app limit the license to specific domains and embed additional notes in the license. The application allows users to define many license features which could enable or disable different functions in your software (e.g. standard, professional and enterprise edition). It is possible to set up different settings that can help you generate licenses for the current profile. Moreover, license and serial codes can be generated via code. The usage reporting feature helps you determine the usage patterns of your software, such as the duration each feature is used for and the most common hardware and software configurations. Restrict the license to certain websites in a few clicks All things considered, CryptoLicensing For.Net proves to be a handy solution for all users who need to restrict the license for specific websites. Thanks to its many useful features and intuitive layout, it can be used by beginners and experts alike. KEYMACRO is a small tool that generates a key for use in a cryptographic algorithm (EKE) to encrypt and decrypt messages. It uses a 128-bit key. Encryption can be done in a much more efficient way with such key size. CryptoMacro Use: Use CryptoMacro to encrypt data. Input a string and a 128 bit key. The program will output a string encoded with Base64 and sent to a second instance of the program. Output: The output of the program is a string encoded with Base64. Encryption Process: The encryption process uses PKCS#5 to encrypt the data with a AES algorithm, and is much faster than using RSA encryption. It uses 128 bit keys. The AES encryption is done like this: key: Key to be used for encryption plaintext: string of data to be encrypted IV: Initialization Vector Ciphertext: Encrypted version of plaintext Input Parameters: key: 128 bit key to be used for encryption IV: Initialization Vector Ciphertext: Encrypted version of plaintext Output Parameters: encryptedText: encrypted version of plaintext IV: Initialization Vector After the encryption process is completed, an extra parameter is added. This is the IV. The IV is a block of random data. This means that the IV will never be reused. The IV should be randomly generated for every encrypted text. www.digitalguidance.co.za is the leading provider of digital marketing consulting services in the Western Cape.
